ABOUT

Aspiring critical maker. Curator of social potentials. Collector of experiences. I seek to approach making not from the lenses of architecture or landscape, but rather through the larger framework of creativity in general, absent of traditional boundaries associated with design disciplines. Questions that guide my work often revolve around the social and experiential narratives of design as well as the larger social discourse a design can generate across disciplines. I am heavily influenced by my cultural experiences abroad and my professional background spanning design, ecology, and pedagogy.
